

LITTLE FINANCE HEROES

The Sharing Cupboard Mission

You do not have to own everything you use.

An adventure about borrowing, caring, repairing and trust

Rain and an empty box

Penny: One game for a whole rainy afternoon?
Goldie: And it is missing exactly the pieces you need.

Child: The box is fuller than the game.

Penny: Then let us just buy everything new!
Cash: That word sounds expensive.

Penny: Let us make the best rainy-day spot in the neighbourhood!
Tally: First let us find out what that needs.

Eighteen euros, a hundred wishes

Goldie: The community centre has eighteen euros for our project.

Penny: Games! Craft kits! Footballs! A telescope!

Tally: Your wishes do not fit in this envelope.
Byte: Not even if we stretch it really hard.

Penny: Then we have to choose more cleverly.

What do we really use?

Penny: What would you really use on a rainy day?

Child: Sometimes a puzzle. Sometimes drawing. Not the same every day.

Byte: Lots of things only get used now and then.

Penny: Maybe we do not have to own everything ourselves.

Goldie: An important discovery.

Treasures in the cupboard

Cash: Look at what is already here!

Tally: Whole, repairable, or no longer safe.

Penny: This puzzle was just lost under the dust.

Penny: We already had more than we thought.
Goldie: Looking costs nothing and sometimes gives a lot.

Repairing is a choice too

Cash: This board and this wheel have years left in them.

Grown-up: I will help with the tools. Safety first.

CHEAP PART / STURDY PART

Penny: A sturdy part costs more, but lasts longer.

Byte: Repair complete.
Cash: And nothing had to go in the bin.

The price after the price

Penny: This one looks great!

Byte: It also needs batteries and extra parts.

Tally: The purchase price is not always the whole price.

Penny: Then let us choose things that last and get used often.

Borrowing is trust

Neighbour: We have a big group game you can borrow.

Penny: For free?

Neighbour: Borrowing costs no purchase price, but it does take care.

Goldie: You promise to bring it back complete, clean and on time.

Penny: That promise does fit in our envelope.

Check before you borrow

Cash: This little figure already has a crack.

Penny: They might think we did that.

Byte: The photo from before we borrowed it shows the same crack.

Goldie: Checking together beforehand prevents trouble later.
Penny: So an honest start helps an honest ending.

A system that helps sharing

Penny: A card for each item and a fixed return basket.

RESERVE FOR WEAR AND REPAIR

Tally: And a small amount set aside for wear and repair.

Child: Can I borrow the drawing box?

Penny: One box, one card, and one clear return day.

Penny: All complete. Thank you for taking good care of it!

One at a time

Cash: The sharing cupboard works!

Child: I want the puzzle AND the drawing box.
Other child: But I am waiting for the puzzle.

Penny: One at a time. Then everyone gets a turn.

Child: Then I will start with drawing. We will swap later.
Goldie: Sharing sometimes takes patience.

Oops is not a secret

Penny: Oh no!

Cash: First rescue, dry and count.

Byte: Everything is dry and complete.

Penny: I am going to tell them what happened anyway.
Tally: Hiding an accident makes the problem bigger.

Honesty protects trust

Penny: Water spilled next to the game. We dried everything right away.

Neighbour: Thank you for telling us. Let us look together.

Goldie: Honesty is the bridge that trust can cross.

Penny: New rule: drinks stay on a different table.

Where did every euro get a job?

Tally: Four euros for repairs, three for labels and five for sturdy bins.

Penny: Then we have six euros left!

More sharing, less clutter

Neighbour: We hardly ever use these complete games any more.

Cash: We will not take this broken car. Unsafe is not free.

Penny: A sturdy shelf from reused wood.

Tally: More choice, without buying everything new.

The cupboard that belongs to everyone

THE SHARING CUPBOARD • FOR EVERYONE

Penny: Welcome to the sharing cupboard!

Penny: I thought lots of fun needed lots of new things.

Goldie: And now?

Penny: Using things well matters more than owning them.

Neighbour: Clean, complete and right on time.

Penny: Promise kept!

Penny: Who picks the next game?

Byte: One at a time, of course.
